

EDUCARE MY EDUCARE

We first got to know about Educare when we needed to secure admission for Jodi in a good reputable school. References to Educare came with high commendations.

Now almost 6 years after and 2 daughters passing through the school, we cannot stop recommending it to our friends.

From general perceptions and its relative 'exclusive' setting, Educare is often considered a bourgeoisie school but then from Miss Phyllis to Miss Mary, all the teachers who have taught and interacted with our daughters have imparted not just academic knowledge but etiquette and discipline.

From the cookery lessons, to the art and craft, ballet and other ECA, our daughters have learnt focus, dedication, hard work, team play, competition and coordination, all attributes needed to be good leaders in years to come.

When our daughters associate with other kids especially in US and UK, they always appear to be 1 grade ahead of their current grades and this is because Educare enforces understanding rather than head knowledge and so the children with such a solid foundation never forget what has been taught.

They provide feedback on your children and actively seek feedback on their methods and efforts, with great desire to improve upon current performance.

As Jana transits from Educare to Greenoak, we will no doubt miss Educare as it has formed an integral part of the foundation that our daughters carry into the larger society and we hope that the entire management and staff will continue to uphold the standards that have been set over the years without necessarily raising the fees (..she smiles...) so that other children will benefit as our kids have.

We will miss Educare!.
