

MY CHILD IN EDUCARE INTERNATIONAL DAYCARE.

If your child is in between the age 1- 6 years and needs to go to a Daycare, it is important you look out for some important signs to avoid putting your child where you will be having unnecessary dilemma.

What are those signs you should look out for?

One should be looking out for a daycare where:

- Children spend their time playing with educative materials and not wandering aimlessly.
- Children having access to assorted building blocks, constructive materials, nice story books, different kinds of toys with all the children having fun differently at same time.
- Teachers (that truly love children) working with individual children, small and whole group.
- A classroom well decorated with original art work showing the children's writing.
- Children playing with numbers, alphabet, learning things about nature as well as introducing the children to domestic work e.g. Cookery.
- Children being introduced to projects, giving them an opportunity to explore.
- Having the children play outside in a secured environment.
- Having an adaptable curriculum like the I.P.C. and very important, children and parents looking forward to school. There is nothing like feeling secured about sending your child to school.

According to Anita Osaki- Braide "Educare International Daycare is like a nice loving home where children learn and grow to become responsible citizens".

One day, Anita's little brother (at 11 months) came putting his fingers in her food making a mess and eating at the same time, which he was fond of though; she looked at him so furious, turned to me and said "Mummy, you need to send Shane to Educare so he will learn some manners, see him messing up my food". I looked at her and smiled but took note of that warning.

When Shane was 1year 3months, I got him into Educare International Daycare and ever since, it's been a nice experience.
